

Brands Charges As False

Vishinsky Pulls Out All Stops, Claims Accusations Made To Stop Peace Talk

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (AP)—Russia's Andrei Y. Vishinsky today branded U. S. charges of Red atrocities in Korea as "flagrant concocted falsification."

The fiery Soviet delegate told the 60-nation U. N. General Assembly that charges detailed yesterday by Henry Cabot Lodge Jr. of the United States were brought out to "dynamite" peace negotiations in Korea.

He pulled out all stops in calling the Lodge report "cynical," "cowardly," "a maneuver to cover the worst crimes of all perpetrated by the American military circles in Korea," and "redolent of slander."

Vishinsky was the first speaker at this morning's session, called to debate the American charges that some 38,000 persons were victims of atrocities committed by Communist Chinese and North Korean soldiers.

Vishinsky accused the Americans of deliberately throwing in the 300-page document containing the details of the atrocity charges only two days ago so the delegates would have no time to examine it before the debate started.

"This is sheer mockery," he said, "deliberately organized in order to make it impossible for the General Assembly impartially to examine this thing."

He countered with charges that the South Korean police had committed atrocities in their drive to round up Reds. He cited Western press accounts of the drive to press his point.

"All sorts of junk is piled up in the American material and we are asked to accept it as weighty evidence," Vishinsky declared.

The Soviet bloc, counting on the neutral nations to stay out of the debate and abstain from voting, apparently is determined to fight tooth and nail the whole atrocity issue.

India already has served notice that as head of the Neutral Nations Repatriation Commission in Korea, she will neither speak nor vote.

Other neutrals, especially members of the Arab-Asian bloc, also are expected to keep silent.

There was little evidence, however, that the Soviet bloc would receive any over support in the debate.

Most delegates sat in shocked silence yesterday as Chief U. S. Delegate Henry Cabot Lodge Jr. delivered the stark atrocity report and introduced a resolution calling on the 60-nation Assembly to:

1. Express "its grave concern at reports and information that North Korean and Chinese Communist forces have, in a large number of instances, employed inhuman practices against the heroic soldiers of forces under the United Nations Command in Korea and against the civilian population of Korea";

2. Condemn "the commission by any government or authorities of murder, mutilation, torture, and other atrocity acts against captured military personnel or civilian population, as a violation of rules of international law and basic standards of conduct and morality and as affronting human rights and the dignity and worth of the human person."

This Is Winter?

We're finding it hard to believe—that Christmas is near, that another year is approaching, that winter is actually in our midst although the first calendar day of the odd season is a few days away. What with temperatures like we have been having, the sunny days we've been enjoying, it looks like anything but the time of year that really is here.

Windy and mild with increasing cloudiness tonight. Wednesday occasional rain or drizzle and colder. Low tonight in the 40s. High Wednesday near 50.

The temperature at 7 a. m. was 31; 61 at 1 p. m. and 63 at 2 p. m.

One year ago today here high 42, low 37. Two years ago high 57, low 32.

Stage at Lake of the Ozarks: 45.7, steady.

Tribune Halts Publication In NY Strike

Wishes to Avoid Use As Instrument To Force Settlement

BULLETIN

NEW YORK (AP)—New talks began today seeking to end the major city newspaper strike today as the Herald Tribune suspended publication. There were indications the strike would continue at least another 24 hours.

Representatives of publishers and striking photo-engravers began renewed bargaining sessions with Federal Mediator Bernard Forman attending.

NEW YORK (AP)—News-hungry New Yorkers were without a major city newspaper today as the Herald Tribune suspended publication in sympathy with the six big dailies closed down by a photo engravers' strike.

The shutdown of all the principal newspapers was the first in the city's publishing history.

Representatives of the AFL Photo Engravers Union and of the publishers of the six struck newspapers scheduled resumption of negotiations today.

When negotiations were recessed last night, a federal mediator said there was no change in efforts to settle the dispute over wages and other issues. Union and publisher representatives had no comment on the course of the talks.

Photo engravers on the six newspapers walked out early Saturday, but the Herald Tribune was not struck because it has its photo engraving done by a commercial plant. The six dailies were closed down because members of other newspaper unions honored the picket lines of the 400 photo engravers. More than 20,000 employees were idled.

The Herald Tribune, which published a streamlined eight-page edition yesterday, announced last night it was suspending until further notice.

The newspaper's announcement, saying in effect that it would not let itself be used as an instrument to force a strike settlement on the other newspapers, read in part:

"We take this action because it is clear that the continued publication of the Herald Tribune is being used as an instrument to obstruct normal collective bargaining."

"In this connection a responsible union official involved in the current strike was quoted as saying, if the Herald Tribune is publishing and the times is closed, it won't stay closed long."

"We think the publishers... feel that the other publishers have done everything possible."

A fair agreement, including two offers to submit the issues to an impartial arbitrator or board of arbiters.

Branson Will Unveil Its Famous Adoration Scene Next Sunday

BRANSON (AP)—The Branson Adoration Scene will be unveiled at 4:30 p. m. next Sunday with a parade of 24 floats and seven bands.

A musical program will be given by a chorus of 300 Taney County school children under the direction of Mrs. Jack Griffith of Branson. The nationally famous scene is constructed on Mount Branson in gigantic proportions and is visible for a distance of five miles at night.

It was designed by Steve Miller, Ozark artist.

Three figures of guardian angels will be added to the scene this year.

Topping the panorama is a huge neon star 20 feet in height. A specially designed audio system is being installed to broadcast a program of Christmas music over a radius of 12 miles.

The Adoration display and festivities were inaugurated in Branson in 1949 as a cooperative community project. As many as 33,000 persons have visited the region during one holiday season to view the display.

FBI Charges Sedalia Boy With Using The Mails To Defraud

Bennie Bruce Hatfield, 18, of 500 East Walnut, Sedalia, arrested by the Federal Bureau of Investigation and charged with using the mails to defraud, was arraigned Monday afternoon before U. S.

Commissioner Charles H. Thompson at Kansas City and his hearing was set for Friday morning in federal district court.

After his arraignment, he was remanded to the county jail of Jackson County in lieu of $5,000 bond.

A senior at Smith-Cotton High School, where he was taken into custody at noon Monday, Bennie is the son of Mr. and Mrs. William B. 'Bill' Hatfield.

According to J. C. Ellsworth, special agent in charge of the FBI at Kansas City, Hatfield is charged with having mailed a letter to R. C. Greenlease Sr., of Kansas City, on Oct. 13, 1953 in which Hatfield claimed he knew the whereabouts of the ransom money Mr. Greenlease "has paid for the return of his son, Bobby."

Hatfield claimed he would disclose the whereabouts of the ransom money for $10,000 and cautioned Mr. Greenlease not to notify the law. Ellsworth said. He instructed Mr. Greenlease to place an advertisement in the Sedalia Democrat indicating he was willing to pay the $10,000 for the return of the ransom money.

Hatfield further instructed, according to Ellsworth, that the money be wrapped in brown paper and sent to "Bennie Bruce, General Delivery, Sedalia, Mo." where it would be picked up by a boy.

Ellsworth said Hatfield was charged with violating Title 18 of Section 1341 of the U. S. Code which prohibits using the U. S. mails in connection with schemes to obtain money by false or fraudulent pretenses or representation and that the offense carries a maximum penalty of five years in prison and a $10,000 fine.

The longlines department of A T & T said developmental and research work on such a cable has been going on for 25 years. The project will take three years to complete.

An agreement has been signed for construction of the cable by A T & T, the British Post Office, which provides telephone service in Great Britain, and the Canadian Overseas Telecommunication Corp. The cable will be owned jointly by three organizations.

The submarine telephone cable system will contain a group of telephone circuits between New York and London, and another group between Montreal and London. At the gateway cities, the circuits will connect with the telephone systems of the respective countries.

Until now, transatlantic and transpacific telephone service has been by short wave.

The longest underwater telephone cable to date is AT&T's between Key West, Fla., and Havana, Cuba, using special long-life vacuum tube repeaters.

The transatlantic portion of the new telephone system, with its many vacuum tube repeaters, will be 2,000 nautical miles in length and will be laid in depths to three miles on the ocean floor between Scotland and Newfoundland.

The newspaper's announcement, saying in effect that it would not let itself be used as an instrument to force a strike settlement on the other newspapers, read in part:

"We take this action because it is clear that the continued publication of the Herald Tribune is being used as an instrument to obstruct normal collective bargaining."

Interview Prisoners Tomorrow

Allies Will Talk To ROK Troopers Who Have Not Yet Asked to Return

PANMUNJOM (AP)—Allied war prisoners who haven't come home tomorrow begin considering their big choice—democracy or communism.

Work was completed today for U. N. interviewers to start talks with 30 of the 328 South Koreans who have not returned.

After the South Koreans are finished—about 11 days of interviews—the Allied teams will face the important problem of trying to win back 22 Americans and 1 Briton.

The big question is: How many? The Communists wooed back only about 3 per cent of the 2,500 Chinese and Koreans they have interviewed—a humiliating propaganda war.

"We want all of the prisoners listed as pro-Communist to get freedom of choice," a U. N. Command spokesman said.

"We want people all over the world to understand that the UNC is willing to give these prisoners a free choice—even if they choose the Communists."

An Allied officer said he believes the 30 ROKs would agree to come out for the first day's talks.

The Allied effort will open with five South Korean interviewers, one at each of the five explanation sites requested. The Communists used up to three men in each explanation tent, but the repatriation commission allows the Allies only five at any one time.

Some of the ROK prisoners are known to be dedicated Communists who will never return.

When the Communists began their own talks last Oct. 15, their explainers were screamed at, spat upon, kicked, hit with flying chairs and called every obscene word in the Chinese and Korean languages.

The Allies hope to get back a higher percentage than the Communists.

The Communist defeat is believed back of the Red's apparent withdrawal from further explanations.

If the custodian Indian command follows its old plan, 10 new men from each side will be allowed in the Allied POWs camp at one time.

Explanations end at midnight Dec. 23. The day after, on Jan. 22, the armistice agreement says all war prisoners who haven't returned will be released as civilians.

The UNC has said the explanations will be "dignified and brief." It is obviously trying to make a different impression on neutral observers than the Communists, who harangued prisoners for up to five hours at a time and then practically torpedooed their side of the explanations with an unreasonable demand after the other.

Meanwhile, Allied and Red negotiators working on plans for a Korean political conference were in recess until tomorrow mulling over new proposals for each side.

The Allies proposed yesterday that Russia be admitted as a third party rather than a belligerent or a neutral, and the Reds offered another proposal for setting up the conference.

As the negotiators recessed, South Korea's government protested again about Communist occupation under the armistice of territory below the 38th Parallel which formerly was part of South Korea.

A government statement said the Reds must be "pushed out of these areas" and added:

"If our friends who asked us to support the Panmunjom talks will not help, then we shall have to do the job ourselves."

Still No Word on How He Will Arrive—

Entries Still Coming In For Santa's Parade Friday

The time for the Santa Claus parade is drawing near and entries are still coming in, according to Guy Peabody, director.

If those entered are wondering about the "hows" and "wheres" of this parade, Mr. Peabody promises that he will have full instructions in the Sedalia Democrat-Capital on Wednesday and Thursday. All particulars of the parade will be given then.

He didn't promise, though, to tell anything about Santa himself, except that the old gent will be here Dec. 4 at 7 p. m. Santa is pleased over how big the parade seems to be growing. He likes big parades. He is glad, too, that it is going to be at night and so many of the floats, cars and other things will have lights. He likes Christmas lights, in fact it always takes him a little longer now to deliver his gifts to boys and girls on Christmas Eve than it used to be because he always has to look at the Christmas decorations. He thinks they get prettier every year.

Santa is happy over the fact that there will be so many bands and carolers in the parade this year. "That's what makes a parade," he said. "Music—and that is what makes Christmas, too."

He likes it because there are going to be so many Christmas queens in it. He would like to get everyone of them under the mistletoe—but, Mrs. Santa Claus says: "No, indeed, Mr. Claus. You leave that mistletoe right here on our own chandelier under the tree."

If you kiss anybody under the mistletoe it is going to be me," Well, a fellow can dream, can't he? And Santa dreams. In fact he is dreaming this time of year with his eyes wide open. He has too much on his mind right now to sleep. He wakes up at 3 o'clock in the morning and he just can't get back to sleep. He just lays there and plans and plans for Christmas.

But, it won't be long now and his first official visit here will be on Dec. 4, about 7 o'clock that evening, and about 20 days later at midnight he will be slipping down the chimney.

Cow Falls Into Hole On C. L. Booker Farm

A cow belonging to C. L. Booker, 1922 East 16th, fell into a six foot hole and remained there several hours before being rescued.

The hole, being dug for a septic tank, was left unguarded and the animal slipped into it as it wandered too near the edge.

Several bales of hay were thrown into the hole for the cow to climb up on and, with the aid of a truck pulling a rope tied around the cow's neck, it was pulled out. The cow appeared to have been hurt from the fall as it limped off to the barn.

Traffic Deaths Cut In State Thru October

79 Persons Die In Traffic Mishaps On Missouri Roads

JEFFERSON CITY (AP)—Traffic deaths eased off a little bit in Missouri during November.

The Highway Patrol reported today only 79 persons were killed last month, compared with 106 during November, 1952. That brought the year's total for 11 months to 895, against 930 at the same time last year.

Capt. J. A. Berglund said the final monthly total probably would be a little higher as late death reports come in, but not more than five or six.

Berglund, traffic safety officer for the patrol, said the November record was better than October for two main reasons—more open weather and fewer bad accidents with multiple deaths. In October, when the month's total was 130, four accidents accounted for 24 deaths.

He warned drivers to be careful in December, a month of early darkness, frequent bad weather and slick streets—and heavy Christmas traffic.

The Missouri Highway Commission's safety division took a look at 12 of October's worst highway accidents and came up with one major factor—excessive speed.

The report today said the analysis was made only on a dozen of the worst accidents among the 1,303 reported outside the urban areas during October. Speed was noticeable in ten accidents. Besides speed these other conditions were noted:

Thirty-seven persons were killed and 24 others were injured. Seven accidents occurred in daylight, five during darkness.

Eleven happened on dry pavement in clear weather and only one on wet pavement during a light rain.

Five occurred on concrete paving, seven on the bituminous surfaces.

In eight accidents the terrain was hilly and the others took place on flat surfaces.

Six occurred on curves and six on straight stretches.

Only one report showed a driver had been drinking and only one vehicle was reported defective mechanically.

Dulles Answers Critics

Says He and Ike Are Not Being Influenced By Blustering And Domineering Methods

WASHINGTON (AP)—Secretary of State Dulles, in an evident retort today that President Eisenhower and he "do not propose to throw away" the assets of Allied cooperation "by blustering and domineering methods."

Dulles did not mention McCarthy by name but he said he was commenting on widely publicized criticism to the effect that the United States speaks in too kindly a manner to its allies and has sent them "perfumed notes instead of using threats and intimidation to compel them to do our bidding."

Miss Frances Cassard Tells Sorosis About Life In Japan

A glimpse into life of the Japanese people was given Monday afternoon at Sorosis by Miss Frances Cassard, who took for her theme "Behind the Shoji."

Frances Cassard is a concert singer and a lecturer. From childhood she had had a deep interest in the lives of people of other nations because her mother had such an interest and every fourth year of her school years she spent in a foreign country because her mother believed that one best learned the people of a country and their language by living with them.

During World War II Miss Cassard was in 19 different countries, some that were not touched too deeply by the war and others that were. Sometimes she was so far away she knew little of the tragedy that was going on in the world and again she was right in the fox holes in the front lines.

Then the war was over, but the hatred lingered on in the hearts of the people of her country for the Japanese. They could forgive the Japanese, the Germans who fought them, but not the Japanese. They did not trust them. They told many things about them that Frances Cassard tried to trace down because everybody would say only that they had heard these things about the Japanese and so she had a desire to live among the people of Japan and know them better. The understanding of other people, their customs, their religions, their lives, is the only way to bring a lasting peace to the world, Frances Cassard believes.

She was on a concert tour when the Air Force called her and asked her to go to Japan to set up music schools for the men in service on the various islands that make up Japan. She was thrilled because that was the country she wanted to go to, was planning to go to. For two years she lived there, setting up these schools, and her job was almost 24 hours a day, because the actual work began at 5 o'clock in the evening when the men were off duty and the day was spent in planning the program.

At the end of the two years Miss Cassard had not found what she really wanted in Japan, she had not actually found the life of the Japanese people, and so she decided to stay on and live in a Japanese home.

In this home was a mother, her son and her daughter, the son and daughter about the age of Frances Cassard and since the word San was added after the name of any person to designate Mr., Mrs. or Miss, even to Mamma, Papa, brother, Sister, Baby, the mother was called Mama San, which meant Mrs. Mama. That was what Miss Cassard called the mother in the home.

It is very impolite in Japan, said the speaker, to enter a home with shoes on and several times she forgot, but the Japanese people are too polite to say anything about it. Thick, soft straw matting is on the floor and is always spotless. There are no beds anywhere in sight. The beds are a very thick mattress, she said, covered with red silk and the covers are of black silk with many colors woven into them.

It is much easier to get used to sleeping on the floor, said Miss Cassard, than it is to get used to sleeping in a soft bed again. She found that out coming back on the boat when the morning after the first night at sea she appeared looking as if she had had a sleepless night. The captain couldn't understand. The sea had been smooth and peaceful, why hadn't she slept? And then he tried an experiment. He had her mattress put on the floor and the next night she slept fine.

Her day in Japan, Miss Cassard said, started at 6 o'clock in the morning with the sound of the bells from the temple on the hill, and sometimes she could even hear the reading of the scripture if the wind was in the right direction. At 6:10 the bean seller would come by singing a little song, the words of which were: "Beans, beans, beans," and from that time on peddlers of all kinds would come by some with little flutes and some singing their wares.

The American guest in the Japanese home would fold her mattress three times and put it in a closet. Then she would go down to breakfast which started with bean soup. The meal was served on a very low table, and they all sat on the floor. People always sit on the floor because there are no chairs, chairs with four legs like ours would leave deep prints in the matting and wear it out. Some Japanese families had two or three rooms with chairs and western furniture, which they called western rooms and in which they entertained foreign guests.

Miss Cassard often took part in the religious services in the home, she frequently dressed in Japanese costumes, especially at social functions, because it was a compliment to the hostess and it also gave her more of an opportunity to become part of the group. They did not think so strongly that she was a westerner. She entered the Tokyo University so that she could better learn about the young people and their language, and she said, she was the first westerner to attend the college.

She sang for many occasions in Japan but the outstanding thing that she did was when she received an invitation from the emperor to sing at the royal palace. The royal carriage came to the home where she was living to get her. There was real excitement in the neighborhood when that happened.

The empress gave her a beautiful sash and she was also given a gorgeous silken kimono with threads of gold, woven in it, which was 125 years old. This was given to Miss Cassard because she was an American and this was the kimono worn by the empress when Commodore Perry arrived in Japan 100 years ago and was received by the emperor and empress at that time.

Miss Cassard was in a lovely pink kimono and wearing an unusually pretty headdress of wisteria blossoms, and small bright dangles of aluminum, as she spoke for Sorosis. "But," said she, "I wouldn't dare appear in this in Japan, this is a petticoat, and I wouldn't be fully dressed." Then, assisted by Mrs. John Lamy, she put on several kimonos and sashes, showing how they were tied on, and how the big bows in the back were made and how a small pillow is used to make the bow stick out just right and the metal piece that fitted into the sash and held the bow.

Miss Cassard told of the Aconia Club of Japanese children about six to eight years old whose motto was: "We acorns, by studying English, will become great tall oaks."

She told of the popularity of her of her records, of the radio program that played them, the fan mail and then she told of the request from young Japanese people for her to sing American Christmas songs so they could learn them. She sang "White Christmas" and then came the request to sing it in Japanese so the older people could understand it, and she did. This was the hit song and her record was the outstanding record there for six months.

Miss Cassard, who has a beautiful voice, sang several songs in Japanese with Mrs. Paul Bertinoux as accompanist. She also played on an ancient Japanese musical instrument.

The speaker was introduced by Mrs. Leon Archias Jr., chairman of the civics committee.

The meeting was presided over by Mrs. A. J. Campbell, president.

Mrs. Herbert Selfert, history and literature chairman, announced that the program ext Monday, the last program until after the first of

Safety Belts In Cars Can Save Lives

By ALTON L. BLAKESLEE
AP Science Reporter

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Safety belts in automobiles could save thousands of lives in highway accidents, an American Medical Assn. exhibit suggested today.

It finds that 453 out of 633 persons killed in one year in Indiana probably could have survived by some safety changes. They were not killed by accordion collapse of their cars. They died from being thrown and tossed. Safety belts, crash helmets, or safety changes within cars apparently could have given them a new ticket on life.

The exhibition is presented by Sgt. Elmer Paul, head of the auto crash injury research section, Indiana state police, and Trooper John B. Klein. It is part of a symposium on prevention of highway deaths at the AMA's mid-winter meeting opening today.

Of 633 persons killed in accidents analyzed in 1952, more than half died of skull fractures, 15 per cent from neck injuries, and 22 per cent from chest injuries. Many of the chest injuries were drivers flung against steering wheels or posts.

It is not just high speed which kills, Paul said. Two little girls were killed by being flung out the door of the back seat when their car, moving at 20 miles an hour, was hit obliquely by another machine.

A man's car skidded, struck a pole, and suffered only $150 damage. The man slid across the seat, out the open door and died when his head hit a pole.

Safety belts, just as one means of saving lives, are being installed now by some car owners, Paul said. And 25 Indiana state police cars now are equipped with them. A harness-type belt, holding the chest and shoulders back, is better than the airplane seat-belt type, he added.

The right front seat is one of the greatest danger spots. A study of passengers only, excluding what happened to drivers, found that 70 per cent of passengers killed were riding in the right front seat, and 23 per cent in rear seats.

Drivers Escape Injury In Wreck On Highway 65

A collision on Highway 65 at Spring Fork Junction demolished a 1952 Chevrolet gravel truck and did considerable damage to a 1951 Chevrolet tractor trailer about 5:45 p. m. Monday. The drivers escaped with minor bruises.

According to State Trooper Pete Stohr, Thomas Gardner, 28, driver of the gravel truck belonging to C. C. Cover, was headed north on the highway and the tractor-trailer was being driven south by Charles Paddock, Tulsa, Okla. Stohr reported a car had signaled for a left turn and had stopped to permit Gardner who was approaching from the opposite direction to pass. This car and a second car behind also was stopped when Paddock topped a rise in the hill and turned out to pass and in doing so crossed the road in front of the gravel truck.

The gravel truck crashed into the side of the flat bed trailer knocking it into a ditch on the east side of the highway. A 25-foot iron bar used in drilling wells, was knocked loose and shifted forward just missing the cab of the tractor on the side where Paddock was sitting.

The gravel from the dump truck was scattered over the highway and created a hazard for other cars for a time until it was cleared off.

Says Any Cuts Must Be Made In Security

HOLLYWOOD, Fla. (U.S.)—Secretary of the Treasury Humphrey said today that if large cuts in federal spending are to be made next year they must be carved out of national security outlays.

Humphrey said, in remarks prepared for the annual convention of the Investment Bankers Assn., that the government will run eight to nine billion dollars in the next year unless spending can be cut, taxes raised or some combination achieved. And he declared:

"Government spending ballooned during the past few years in the security area. If great reductions are to be made, they will have to be made largely in that area, because it is such a large percentage of our total expense."

But, Humphrey said, "We cannot swing a broad ax" in cutting security spending. He declared also that eliminating extravagance in military spending would achieve "only relatively small saving" and only over a considerable period of time.

"Big reductions in security spending," Humphrey said, "can only come from perfecting a new and more effective defense program which costs less money. This too, takes time and tremendous planning, work and effort."

Nevertheless, Humphrey declared, "We have not abandoned effort or hope for an early balanced budget." He made it plain, however, that there was little prospect for a balanced budget in fiscal 1955, beginning next July 1.

Humphrey said the Eisenhower administration's two principal goals are:

1. "That we have military strength of sufficient power not only for our own defense but also to help promote peace in the world."

2. "That we maintain an economy of sufficient strength and productive power to continuously support that military posture."

Humphrey said the present $75-billion-dollar debt limit is "of great concern" because, he said, it prevents the Treasury from handling the debt in "an orderly, business-like fashion." Congress last summer rejected an administration request to raise the legal debt ceiling up to $200 billion.

Benson Thinks Farm Output Cut Would Harm US

CHICAGO (U.S.)—An over-all reduction in farm output, says Secretary of Agriculture Benson, "can have terrific repercussions in our entire economy."

The effects of reduced agricultural output, Benson said last night in criticizing current federal farm programs, do not stop with the producer.

"Actually," Benson said, "the number of people who earn all or part of their daily living through transporting, processing, packaging and merchandising of products of our farms exceed those actually engaged in agriculture itself."

The Republican farm chief speaking to 1,300 delegates at the annual national 4-H club Congress promised that the Eisenhower administration will offer to Congress proposals for an improved farm program. These, he said, "will help farmers gain full parity of price and income in our market places—rather than some fraction of parity in a government warehouse," as well as enlarged markets.

By parity he meant a standard for measuring farm prices, declared by law to be fair to farmers in relation to prices they pay. Present law requires the government to support major crops at 90 per cent of parity.

The administration's goal, Benson told the nation's leading farm youth, is a constantly increasing and more efficient production of farm goods.

Gouzenko Says World War III Near At Hand

ST. LOUIS (U.S.)—Igor Gouzenko, former Russian embassy clerk who disclosed a Russian spy ring in Canada, told the Post-Dispatch today he believes World War III is near.

Donald Grant of the Post-Dispatch, in a copyrighted dispatch from Toronto, reported Gouzenko "does not believe the atomic bomb provides any real security for the West."

"He believes it is deathly important for the United States and Canada — to stop bickering and stand together," Grant reported.

The Post-Dispatch reported Gouzenko's wife was present during the four-hour interview at an undisclosed location. Gouzenko, the former Russian code clerk, has built a new life under an assumed name in an Ontario village for personal security reasons.

In the interview, Gouzenko said "the most definitely does not believe in a preventative war against Russia."

"What he does believe," the article continued, "is that communism must be fought seriously and well by a west that is strong, vigilant and morally right x x x x x."

"Gouzenko said he is interested in catching Russian spies—not in 1945, or at any other date in the past, but now, before it is too late."

Gouzenko said yesterday in a copyrighted article written for the Post-Dispatch and the Toronto Telegram that he had decided not to be interviewed by the Jenner subcommittee of the U. S. Senate.

The subcommittee twice had forced requests to interview him. Gouzenko said he had decided his best interests of either U. S. or Canadian security would endanger his anonymity.

Sacred Heart High Spectrum Staff Gets Year's Assignments
By Barbara Lamy

Tonight the Sacred Heart "B" team will meet Houstonia in an unscheduled, but exciting, basketball game. The basketball game will be preceded by a volleyball game starting at 7:30 p. m.

The Spectrum editor, Paul Reasor, with the help of his co-editors, Jack Ryan and Richard Stohr, in a meeting Monday afternoon distributed assignments to the staff members. The members of the Spectrum staff are the following:

Assemblers, Lorene Klein, Mary Jo Morarity and Josephine White; Artists, Jim Eschbacher and Barbara Lamy; business managers, Betty Ann Kline, Alphonsine Miles and Francis Moser; photographers, Paul Russell and Jack Ryan; typists, Loretta Harper, Mary Jo Morarity, and Josephine White, and writers, Mary Jo Aldridge, Beverly Couhig and Barbara Lamy.

The internal security subcommittee on which Welker serves has scheduled public questioning to tomorrow, this was named to Olen, a former aide to White.

Ullmann, testifying before a Senate investigations subcommittee in another recent inquiry, refused to answer questions about alleged Communist spy activities. He said the answers might tend to incriminate him.

An FBI report dated in November 1945 and already made public, named Ullmann as a suspected member of an espionage ring. Ullmann had been a Treasury Department aide to White, and also had been White's aide at the Bretton Woods international monetary conference in 1944. White died in 1948.

Sen. John M. Butler (R-Md.), who has been acting chairman of the international security subcommittee in the absence of Sen. Jenner, said the group also will meet behind closed doors tomorrow to take stock of recent developments in its moves to question Igor Gouzenko in Canada.

The Toronto Star reported yesterday that Gouzenko, the former Russian code clerk whose disclosures touched off Canada's celebrated spy trials of 1946, will refuse to let the Jenner subcommittee question him.

The Star said Gouzenko has decided his testimony would not serve the best interests of either U. S. or Canadian security, and would jeopardize the anonymity under which he has made a new life for himself under an assumed name.

He Had Fund When Arrested

ST. LOUIS (U.S.)—Carl Austin Hall insisted to questioners in his death row cell yesterday that he had most of the $600,000 Greenlease ransom money when he was arrested, a high official said today.

The official, who declined to be named, also said Hall repeated that the suitcases containing the money were left in his hotel room when he was taken to a district police station Oct. 6.

Hall and Mrs. Bonnie Brown Heady were questioned by Chief of Police Jeremiah O'Connell and Edward L. Dowd, St. Louis circuit attorney, at the Missouri Penitentiary in another effort to find $303,720 of the ransom money still missing.

The condemned man was unable to identify any of several photographs shown him by Chief O'Connell in an attempt to learn the identity of a mysterious man Hall had seen outside his hotel room as police led him away, the official said.

Dowd said after the interview that statements by Hall and Heady might prove to be the basis for future prosecution in the case. Officials began a study of the statements today.

Old Charities Tie Up Huge London Sums

LONDON (AP)—There's a million-dollar net egg available here in Britain to ransom anybody captured by Barbary Coast pirates.

And there's a $9,000 fund to build a post house and graveyard in the heart of London—in case plague breaks out.

The Barbary Coast pirates went out of business more than 120 years ago and there hasn't been a plague outbreak in London for 200 years, but the money is still there waiting to be used—together with an estimated 500 million dollars locked up in 110,000 charities set up by tenderhearted Britons through the centuries.

At least a quarter of these charities are more than 100 years old. Approximately 3,000 of them have annual incomes of less than $70. Nobody knows how many of their purposes are outdated now.

There are funds to provide red flannel underclothes for poor old women and waistscoats for poor old men. There are free coal, bread and cheese to be had for the asking. There are cash grants for out-of-luck tailors, weavers and felt workers.

The size of the bequests varies from tiny village charities of a few shillings—made even smaller by rising living costs—to huge million-pound trusts like the Nuffield Foundation with an income of $280,000 a year.

Each trust—big or small—is hedged with legal safeguards to make sure it is properly administered.

Under British law if the original purpose of a trust is outdated, the courts alone have the power to make a change. Even then the money must go for a purpose as near as possible to the original.

The Barbary pirate trust, for instance, has been out of date since the French drove the pirates from the Algerian coast in 1830. When Henry Smith, rich London merchant, left his money for the redemption of pirate captives, King Charles II was on the throne of England and traders to the Mediterranean were being sold into slavery by the hundreds each year.

The last time the trust was used for its original purpose was in 1827. The trustees got permission to devote the money to supporting hospitals until Britain's medical services were nationalized five years ago.

They applied then to have the income given to impoverished clergymen, but the wheel turned full circle when the court directed that a proportion of the money be given to organizations fighting slavery in parts of Africa and Arabia.

To sort out the tangle of these trusts the former Labor government set up a royal commission three years ago.

For many months the commission tackled the confusion. It recently reported there isn't much that can be done.

Velde Says Committee Will Investigate Bridges' Longshoremen

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Chairman Harold H. Velde (R-M) of the House Un-American Activities Committee says Harry Bridges' International Longshoremen and Warehousemen Union will be investigated by his committee at public hearings starting here today.

"I can assure you it won't stop us," he added when told by newsmen that Bridges' left-wing union has announced plans for stop-work meetings if it is "attacked" by the committee.

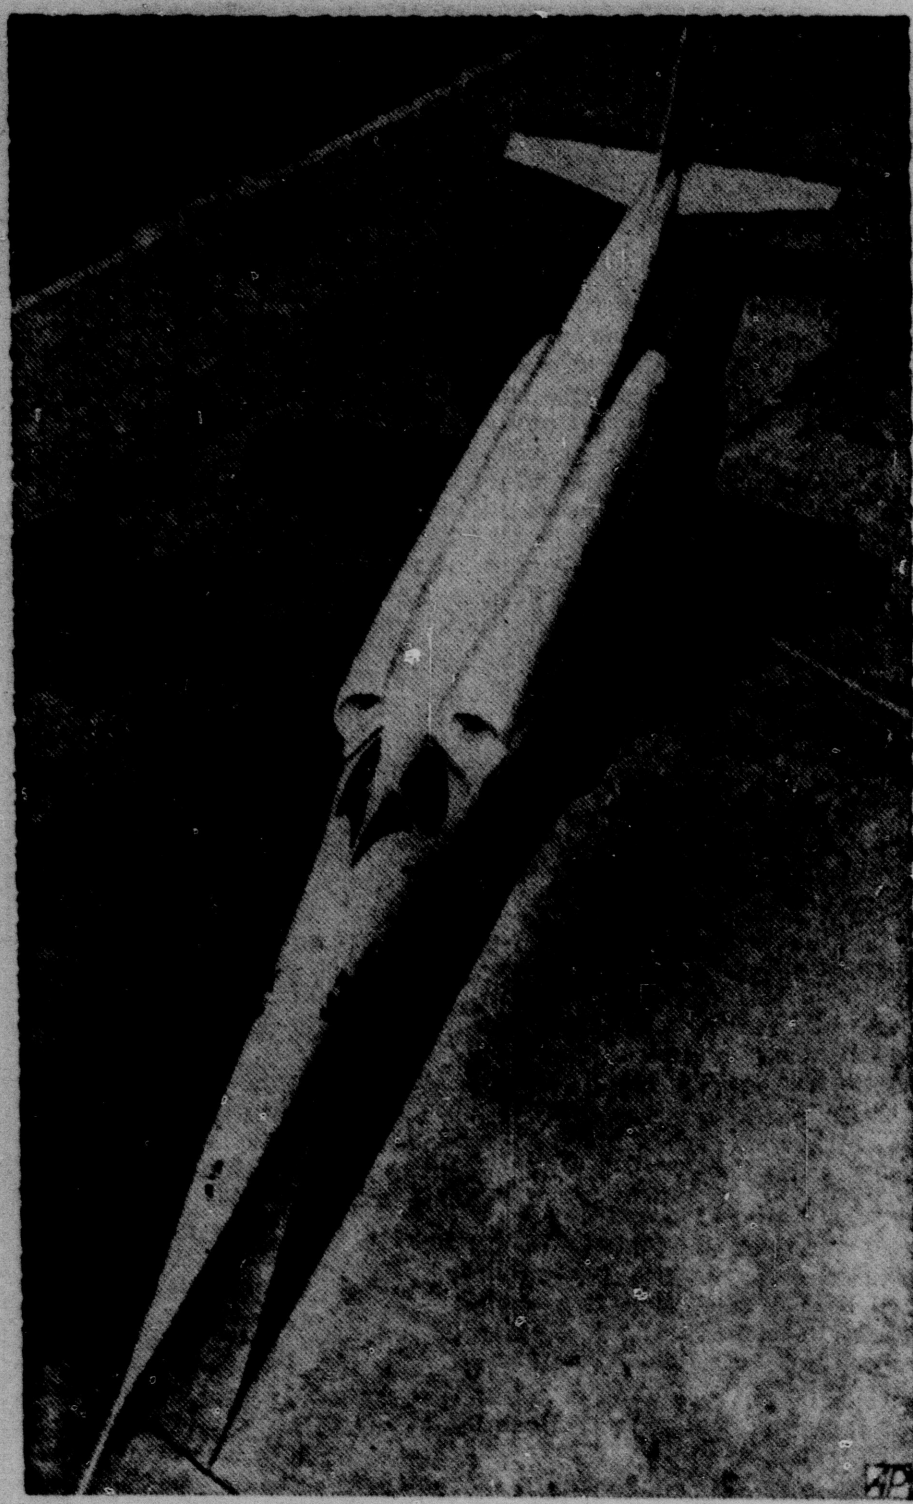

Velde also promised a new statement this Friday of his subpoena of former President Truman in the Harry Dexter White case.

Nixon Calls On Nehru Today For 20 Minutes

NEW DELHI (AP)—U. S. Vice President Richard Nixon paid a formal 20-minute call on Prime Minister Nehru at the Foreign Office today. The American leader said he would get down to the brass tacks of American-Indian problems at another meeting with Nehru tomorrow.

Nixon told newsmen on his arrival yesterday from Madras that he had no specific diplomatic assignments for his five-day visit to India but expected to discuss all problems affecting both the United States and India.

The vice president began his first full day in New Delhi today with a trip to the site of the cremation of famed Indian leader Mahatma K. Gandhi. Nixon laid a wreath there as President Eisenhower's representative. Later he visited his Indian counterpart, Vice President Sarvapalli Radhakrishnan. They had met in Washington earlier this year.

Authoritative sources here indicated Nixon would recommend to Washington that the United States remain in the background if any anti-Communist pact resulted from the call by South Korean President Syngman Rhee and Chinese Nationalist Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek for a united Asiatic front against the Reds.

Nixon himself declined specific comment on the recent Formosa talks between the two that resulted in the appeal. But it was understood he felt the United States should remain in the background to avoid giving Nehru and other Asians the chance to say any possible agreement was formulated at American instigation.

McCarthy Denies His Radio Talk Indicates Split In Party Ranks

LA CROSSE, Wis. (AP)—Sen. McCarthy (R-Wis) denied emphatically last night that his recent nationwide radio and television talk indicated a split in the Republican party, you can't have a follow-the-leader party," he said. "All members should be able to express their own opinions."

A reporter asked McCarthy if he was "trying to wrest the GOP leadership from the President."

The senator replied: "Ever since I have been engaged in this fight to expose communism certain newspaper editors and columnists have been very active in shouting and screaming that I am trying to take over the power of the Republican party."

"I am not concerned with what they say. If I wasted time worrying about that, I would not have time to worry about anything else."

Bob Thomas In Hollywood—Star System In Transition Era, Not On Its Way Out

By BOB THOMAS
HOLLYWOOD (AP)—The star system fold up? Not on your life, assures MGM boss Dore Schary.

There has been a lot of speculation about Hollywood's star system going to pot. When a doll like Betty Grable is allowed to freelance, what else can you believe? And with a studio like Warners down to four players!

For advice on the situation I went to MGM, which has long been an almost feudal stronghold of the star system. Schary scoffed at the notion that the studio was scuttling the stars.

"The star system may be undergoing a period of transition at the present time," he said, "but it will always be the foundation of the movie industry."

"Metro since its inception has always held to that theory. We have built more stars and made them last longer than any other studio. And when they leave here, most of them still have that great aura of being a star."

"At present, we have more stars under contract than all the other studios put together. And we intend to continue our star policy."

"Of course, we have fewer players under contract than we did 5 or 10 years ago. We found that it was not economically sound to maintain the huge list we had in the past. At present there are about 40 names under exclusive contract—and we prefer exclusive picture deals because we can build and control careers that way.

"We cannot carry as many stars because we are making 22 pictures a year, compared to 46 in the past. But I think the size of our star list now is economically sound. We will make enough pictures to keep them busy, and we can also lend them to other studios."

To prove his point, Schary rattled off most of the names on the MGM roster: Tracy, Turner, Gardner, Garson, Liz Taylor, Robert Taylor, Kelly, Williams, Charles, Caron, Angell, Eleanor Parker, Calhern, Blyth, Keel, Jane Powell, Lionel Barrymore, etc., etc. What about Clark Gable?

"He is a question mark. He is now making his last or next-to-last picture under his contract. We hope he will sign again. The same is true of Van Johnson, whose contract is also up soon."

Roy Lewis Gets Out of Army Thanksgiving Day

Roy L. Lewis was thankful on Thanksgiving Day. That morning he was separated from the Army after two years of service.

Roy, who is 28, spent most of his service time as a helicopter mechanic. He took basic training at Ft. Eustice, Va., and then was shipped to Ft. Sill, Okla., to attend the mechanics' school.

His chief assignment was with the 13th Helicopter Company at Ft. Bragg, N. C., until that outfit was sent overseas. By then Roy was close to the time of his separation and was transferred to the 56th Helicopter Company at Ft. Benning, Ga. He has also taken part in the air shows this year at Dayton, O., and Detroit, Mich., and in maneuvers at Las Vegas, Nev., and Camp Drum, N. Y. He was a corporal at the time of separation.

Before entering the service, in November, 1951, Roy was a sheet metal helper-apprentice at the Missouri Pacific shops and he will return to that job soon. He and his wife, the former Dorothy Yesen, are living at 306 North Quincy.

Ike Was Warned By Dewey To Stop McCarthy Early

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON—Those who have watched President Eisenhower during almost a year in office conclude that the No. 1 lesson he still has to learn is that political tactics are exactly the same as military tactics.

If he had realized this, his friends say, he would not have been so surprised and hurt when Senator McCarthy trained his guns on Ike as well as on Truman during his nation-wide broadcast last week. For in politics as in war, you have to pick the moment for an offensive when your potential enemy is weak to take the offensive. Once you let him gather strength, you must expend more ammunition, risk more loss of men to win the same objective.

This is what no less a person than Tom Dewey told Ike about a year ago. For Eisenhower's real decision regarding McCarthy came not after he got into the White House, but while he was campaigning in Indiana.

Dewey hurried to Washington a year ago last October to warn the Republican candidate that he had to take a stand on McCarthy, and he had better do it the coming week in Milwaukee—right in McCarthy's own bailiwick.

Ike's Best Friend

A week or two before, Eisenhower had been eulogized into making a speech in Indianapolis where he shook hands and posed for the newsreels with Senator Jenner of Indiana, the same right-wing Republican who had called Ike's chief benefactor in the Army, George Marshall, "a front for traitors" and "a living lie."

Everyone knew that in his heart Eisenhower didn't relish speaking on the same platform with the rabble-rousing senator from Indiana. Republicans like Senators Duff of Pennsylvania and Ives of New York also knew that Jenner would cut Ike's throat politically once re-elected.

However, the new and green Republican candidate even allowed the man who denounced his best friend to hold up his hand, like the winner at a prize fight, while the newsreels clicked away—all for the benefit of Bill Jenner.

It was after this that Dewey hurried to Washington, persuaded Ike that he had to take a stand regarding the rabble-rousing wing of the GOP, and the best time to do it was in Milwaukee. If Ike either denounced McCarthyism in his own state or did not permit McCarthy to appear on the same platform, Dewey argued, the rest of the party would take the cue that the new Republican leader would not tolerate McCarthyism.

Eisenhower agreed.

Pressure From Summerfield

But when Ike's advisers learned of this, Chairman Arthur Summerfield, now postmaster general, hit the ceiling. Calling Senators Ferguson of Michigan and Hickenlooper of Iowa with Tom Coleman of Wisconsin, they hired a special plane, caught up with the candidate's train in Ohio, argued, pleaded and cajoled until they convinced him he shouldn't snub McCarthy in Milwaukee.

But to save his conscience, Eisenhower wrote into the Milwaukee speech two paragraphs praising his old friend General Marshall, the man against whom McCarthy had delivered 60,000 words of invective from the safety of the senate floor.

However, Arthur Summerfield, hearing of the paragraph of praise for Marshall, notified McCarthy and later smuggled McCarthy up the service elevator of the Pere Marquette Hotel in Peoria, Ill., for a secret conference with Eisenhower.

There McCarthy begged that Ike delete the paragraphs praising Marshall. To have Eisenhower slap him in the face with this tribute to a man he had denounced, McCarthy argued, would deal him a body blow right in his own state. In the end, the new candidate yielded.

The paragraphs praising the man who promoted Dwight Eisenhower from the rank of lieutenant colonel to lieutenant general in one year, after Douglas MacArthur had sent him home from the Philippines, were omitted.

After that, the so-called "neanderthal" wing of the Republican party knew they could handle the candidate. After that, men like liberal Republican Senator Duff of Pennsylvania, the Republican who first urged Ike to run, began to take a much farther back seat.

Stassen Gets Slapped

Some Dewey Republicans, however, figured that after election Eisenhower would see the issues clearly and take a firmer stand. That was why Harold Stassen, a member of the Eisenhower cabinet, took a vigorous stand against McCarthy when the latter announced a deal with Greek shippers. It was the job of the federal government, Stassen announced bluntly and correctly, to deal with Communist trade by Greek shippers.

At this point, however, McCarthy's old friend Vice President Nixon stepped forward. He persuaded Eisenhower that he had to get along with McCarthy, that McCarthy was a power in the party—and by this time he was. For the rules of military tactics had not been applied to politics and McCarthy's strength was growing. So Stassen was told to eat his own words. He did so, humbly, after a conference with McCarthy.

Later when the President delivered his inspiring Dartmouth speech against book-burning, he himself was put in a position of eating his own words. For the Voice of America, about to broadcast the Dartmouth speech abroad, was suddenly stopped.

McCarthy intervened at the White House, following which orders were sent by the White House to the State Department that the inspiring Dartmouth speech in defense of free thought and free literature was not to be broadcast. Furthermore, the President issued a statement that the Dartmouth speech meant no reflection on the senator from Wisconsin.

By this time every Republican leader took the cue. Ike was behind McCarthy. By this time, also strength was gaining more momentum.

It was no great surprise, therefore, when Attorney General Brownell announced publicly that he was dropping the long and carefully documented Senate elections committee charges against McCarthy.

But it did cause great surprise—certainly at the White House—when the man who had been

Patience Is Needed To Cure Ravages Of Polyneuritis

By Edwin P. Jordan, M. D.

"Is there any cure for alcoholic polyneuritis?" writes a correspondent. "I have to care for a 51-year-old patient who has it. He lost the use of his legs for three years, and there does not seem to be any improvement."

One of the common penalties for long-continued chronic addition to alcoholic beverages may be a condition of the nerves, principally of the legs and arms, which goes under the name of alcoholic polyneuritis. When translated into understandable words, this means inflammation and pain in several nerves resulting from over-use of alcohol and perhaps under-use of foods which might have prevented the condition.

Quite often, the parts supplied by the affected nerves show weakness, wasting of the muscles, pain, tenderness, and often changes in sensation or feeling. Sometimes, the pain is severe, and once in a while the interference with sensation is so great that a pin can be stuck into the skin of the affected areas without being felt at all.

Besides alcohol there are many other possible causes. Most of the well-known metals such as mercury, bismuth, arsenic, and lead are responsible in some cases. Vitamin deficiency diseases, particularly beriberi, which is a vitamin "B" deficiency, and pellagra may be at fault.

Polyneuritis sometimes develops from general dietary deficiencies during pregnancy and in the presence of some general disease such as diabetes or pernicious anemia. Any of the well-known infectious diseases may be complicated by polyneuritis. Polyneuritis is a frequent symptom of so-called rheumatic infection.

Weakness Is Serious

Rest in bed is usually needed not only because of the muscular weakness, but also because the heart may become involved. Serious deformities can develop because of the muscular weakness if the limbs are not supported by splints, sandbags, or other means.

A victim of polyneuritis is indeed to be pitied. The pain and muscular weakness usually interfere with walking, with the use of the hands and arms, depending on where the trouble is located. Treatment usually requires patience and ingenuity.

What's Happened To Power To Think For Ourselves

By Mrs. Muriel Lawrence

Are we afraid of our children?

"Yes," say juvenile authorities in city after city across this nation. They say our fear has a lot to do with the rise in juvenile lawlessness everywhere. Writer Howard Whitman, whom I quoted in my last column, said, "No, I don't believe it."

So the juvenile officials in San Francisco took him on a call to the home of a 17-year-old boy whose father said: "He stays out until 3 or 4 in the morning. He's out somewhere now—I don't know where. I can't tell him a thing. I'm at the end of my rope."

Then, pleading for help with control of his son, this 48-year-old parent said, "He thinks nothing of taking a poke at me."

A new low in parental helplessness? Maybe. But if it is, it's only a new low in an old trend.

Within the next months, we'll be reading many learned opinions of the causes of this new wave of juvenile defiance. We'll be hearing a lot about children's need for more parks, more supervised recreation and "understanding."

What we may not hear about is their need for more parents who know what they believe in. That's the real trouble.

For if we want regular hours, we have to know what we believe about late ones. We have to be so sure that 4 a.m. is a wasteful and unproductive time to come home that we can explain it to our son. But if we don't show our conviction, anything can happen. We may have to call in others to do our talking and acting for us.

This rush for other people's thinking is something I'd like to see our P.T.A. groups talk more about. For it's perilous to fool ourselves. There's no difference whatever between the fashionable young mother's dependence on her child psychologist and this helpless father's dependence on the juvenile officials.

Both want relief from the responsibility of judgement.

What is this self-distrust? What enemy sowed it in us? Why are we so complacent about the way we rush for some "expert" in human relationships the moment one gets mixed-up?

Is it just our Age of Specialization? Have we come to regard the psychologists and juvenile officials the way we regard the experts who make out our income taxes, decorate our homes or organize a bridge foursome at a summer resort hotel?

What's happened to our faith in our own power to think and act well? It surely seems a subject for our P.T.A. groups to start talking about. Alone. By themselves. Without any experts or authorities.

Manners Make Friends—

The man who speaks of his wife with obvious pride and respect makes a far better impression on others than the man who acts superior to his wife when he talks of her to others. "I've never met his wife but she must be an awfully nice person from the way he talks about her" is as much of a compliment to the husband as to the wife.

The man who low-rates his wife is at the same time giving others a poor opinion of himself.

It's nice to have a neighbor drop in for a short visit in the afternoon. But nothing throws a busy homemaker off her stride like having a not-so-busy neighbor drop in to say "Hello" and stay three hours.

When you say "I thought I'd drop by for a minute," for your hostess' sake don't let that minute run into more than thirty.

strengthened and built up by Ike turned on him, over every major network, and proceeded to scold his administration almost as if he were Harry Truman.

Now to Get It Unpacked and Stowed Away

The World Today—Both Yield on Big 4 Meeting

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON—Use a magnifying glass to examine the fine print in the exchange of notes between the Big Four—the United States, Britain, France and Russia—on a foreign ministers meeting.

Then, after translating the diplomatic talk, you find this result: The West didn't get all it wanted; neither did Russia. Both sides yielded something.

Summed up and simplified, this is what they said, demanded, won, and surrendered:

The West—In inviting Russia to a Big Four foreign ministers talk, the West laid down strict conditions: (1) firm arrangements for free elections in all Germany, opening the way for a free all-German, unified government and later, perhaps, a German peace treaty and (2) Western-Russian agreement on an Austrian peace treaty.

Russia—Condemning the West for having decided beforehand what must be discussed, Russia insisted (1) first there must be a Big Five conference, which would include Red China, on general world tensions and (2) only after that could there be a Big Four meeting, without China, on Germany.

In the end the West became less precise on what the Russians would have to discuss on Germany and Austria, although insisting they must be discussed first, and refused to let Red China sit in with the Big Four on that problem.

And in the end Russia agreed to meet first with the West, although declaring that at that first meeting it would talk about a second meeting to include China.

Next question: Will the meeting between Russia and the West be held at all? Or will there be more note exchanging? The answer may not come for some days.

When Russia's latest note arrived Nov. 26, agreeing to let Red China wait for another conference, the State Department's first reaction, which has been its reaction to previous Russian notes, was: "Disappointing."

Almost at the same moment Britain's Foreign Minister Anthony Eden was talking confidently of a meeting now between the West and Russia. Whether this had any effect on Secretary of State Dulles is not known.

But yesterday Dulles began to sound like a man more or less reconciled to meeting with the Russians. He didn't, however, say so positively.

Any decision probably will have to wait until after the five-day

Bermuda conference, starting Dec. 4, where President Eisenhower, Sir Winston Churchill, France's Premier Joseph Laniel, France's Foreign Minister Georges Bidault, Dulles and Eden will gather to discuss their problems and strategy.

The Western foreign ministers suggested a meeting with Russia and laid down the conditions in a note July 15. Moscow replied Aug. 4, agreeing to talk on Germany, but wanting Red China in.

The West replied Sept. 2, refusing to open the door to Red China and restricting the talks to Germany and Austria. Russia replied to this Sept. 28, repeating its demands for a conference seat for Red China, wanting to talk about world problems, agreeing to talk on the German problem, but excluding the subject of all-German elections.

On Oct. 18 the West said there might be a chance to talk on wider problems if, first, the Big Four talks on Germany succeeded. At this point the West practically gave Moscow a blank check on Germany by saying Russia's Foreign Minister Vyacheslav Molotov could talk on "any aspect" of the question.

Moscow's Nov. 3 reply was harsh: a rambling, 18-page note which scorched the West for turning up its nose at the idea of meeting first with Red China, was very vague on Germany, and tore into the United States for having overseas bases and general defense preparations, which Russia called "aggressive."

Russia stubbed its toe with that note. World reaction was bad. The West called it a flat Soviet rejection. Russia had put itself in the position of not wanting to talk peace.

Nevertheless, on Nov. 13 Molotov told a news conference in Moscow Red China had to be included in a conference with the West on general world trouble, a conference which would have to precede Russian talks with the West on Germany.

Then Russia backed down in a note Nov. 26, agreeing to a meeting with Russia and the West first, but warning it wanted China in on a later conference.

THE ANGELS FELL

XX

BEN HELM glanced into the kitchenette and then examined the living room some more. Though he was hovering on either side of 40, he was youthfully slender. His hair was thinning in a kind of receding widow's peak, adding to a normally high brow. His nose was slightly hooked, and the nostrils were pinched. His mouth was thin, but smiled easily.

"What was the caliber of the bullet you dug out of the wall?" he asked.

He was looking at the hole over my bed, the hole the police had enlarged Friday night and which I hadn't got around to plastering up again.

I said: "That's not subtle."

"Neither is that hole." He sat down, choosing one of the wooden chairs instead of the more comfortable armchair. "I'm not investigating murder. All I'm looking for are the records."

"You mean the ones in the briefcase?"

"Uh-huh."

"Well, that's something," I said. "You're the first one to mention even vaguely what's in it. I had an idea they had to be papers of some kind. What are they, documents stolen from Larkin's office?"

He studied me. "Who's trying to be subtle now?"

"I'm not. I'm fed up with denying that I haven't got the briefcase and never saw it and don't know where it is."

Helm took a long narrow lighter from his pocket and snapped it on and applied the flame to the bowl of his pipe. He frowned. "My wife sent me this from California. She claims I smoke more matches than tobacco, and this lighter is supposed to direct the flame downward. It works sometimes when the bowl is full, but after you've smoked it down a bit . . ."

I tossed him a book of matches.

HE caught it and said, "Thanks," and lit his pipe. Then he said: "You're not holding out for blackmail. A black-maller is about the lowest form of animal life, and from all I've picked up about you you don't fit in. And if you were out for money, Willie Shad offered you $7000. That's a good price. If you considered the records worth more, you would have said so to the parties concerned. What else is there?"

"That I haven't got it." "It could be that you're afraid the possession of the records will be proof of murder. Maudsloh didn't say so, but I can't imagine him not offering to make a deal with you—the records for immunity. Did he?"

"Yes."

"But it might be that murder is too much even for him to fix," Helm said. "But what have you got to lose by taking the chance? The briefcase does you no good and it's dangerous to hang onto it. I've acted as intermediary in this kind of thing. You leave the briefcase somewhere, and an hour later I pick it up. There'll be no way of proving you'd left it. If you prefer, there'll be money waiting for you when you leave the briefcase."

"I thought I'm not the black-mail type."

"I'm trying this for size. Let's say that instead of money Maudsloh gives his word to continue to defend you as your lawyer."

"That's another form of blackmail," I said.

He looked around the room. "Small and crowded," he observed. "Larkin couldn't have stood more than a few feet from whoever shot him. You were an every officer and learned how to shoot. I doubt if you would have completely missed the first time you shot at him."

"So I didn't shoot him and he wasn't shot here," I said. "On the other hand," he went on, "the bullet that did the job got him between the eyes. One couldn't be more accurate." He snapped the lighter. "Larkin owned a gun. A .32 automatic. It can't be found in his home or in his office."

The lighter flickered over the pipe bowl. He scowled at it and doused it and picked up the matchbook, and as I watched him I tried to recall the size of the battered slug in the wall. I remembered seeing Martha when I'd got it out that it seemed fairly small.

"You said you weren't interested in the murder."

"I am to the extent that it will get me closer to the records." He pointed his pipe at me. "You see what I'm getting at. If shots were fired by two different guns, self-defense can be established."

"That offer has been made," I said. "I see no reason to buy it."

"There's another angle," he said. "That both shots came out of the same gun. I mentioned it would be hard for you to miss a man completely in these close quarters, but not for a woman unused to a revolver. The one between the eyes could have been an accident; the wildest shooting sometimes hits the right spot. Now what if Mrs. Larkin shot him? Still self-defense. After all, he followed her here, and I'm told he was in a rage when he left his office. All she'd have to say was that he was strangling her when she shot him. That's more than enough to free any woman in this state."

My mind clung to what he had said about Barnet Larkin having owned a gun that wasn't the murder weapon. Five or 10 minutes after the shots Mrs. Jones had seen Dina drive off with a man. The pattern Helm was trying to fit me into fitted this other man.

In a hurry to go some place one evening a young mother said to her little daughter: "I wish you would wash the dishes for me tonight."

The little girl turned her head to one side and smiled up at her mother: "And what do I get for doing the dishes?"

The mother hadn't looked at the little girl, she had only heard the words: "What do I get for washing the dishes?" and she didn't like it. Of course she had given her a dime or so now and then when she had done something for her but she certainly wasn't going to have her child expecting to be paid for everything she did.

"You're not going to get a thing," the mother said crossly. "You just get busy on those dishes."

"But, mother," said the little girl hurt down deep, "I didn't want any money—I just meant a kiss. A kiss from you, Mother, is better than money anytime." — H.L.

Police Check Hall's Final Statement

ST. LOUIS (AP)—St. Louis police officials today began checking a signed death row statement by kidnaper Carl Austin Hall to see if any new leads could be found to the missing $303,720 Greenlease ransom money.

After Hall and his partner in crime, Bonnie Brown Heady, were quizzed for more than four hours in their state prison cells yesterday, St. Louis Circuit Atty. Edward L. Dowd said their statements might prove to be the basis for future prosecution in the case.

Dowd and Police Chief Jeremiah O'Connell conducted the questioning at Jefferson City with the permission of federal authorities.

"The interviews," Dowd said, "were well worth the time" and could be used if the state decides later someone should be prosecuted in the mystery of the missing money. Less than $300,000 was recovered with the kidnappers' arrest here.

Meanwhile, speculation that the federal grand jury investigation into the missing money might be transferred from Kansas City to St. Louis increased with the arrival here of U. S. Attorney Edward L. Scheufler of Kansas City.

Scheufler said he would talk with U. S. Attorney Harry Richardson here today about "a number of things." He declined to say if the Greenlease case was among them.

The kidnappers will be executed in Missouri's gas chamber Dec. 18, a week before Christmas, for the kidnapping of 6-year-old Bobby Greenlease of Kansas City.

Hall's confession, read at his Kansas City trial, said he had about $502,000 of the $600,000 ransom when arrested here Oct. 6.

Dowd and O'Connell, when they sought permission to question the pair, said they wanted to check the confession with statements made at a police inquiry into circumstances surrounding the arrest.

Hall also said in his confession that the money, contained in two suitcases, was not taken to a district police station with him. Shoulders and Dolan have said repeatedly it was.

Most of the questioning yesterday was directed at Hall. He was shown several pictures and drawings for identification, including a drawing of the apartment where Hall was arrested and part of the money found.

In another aspect of the case, three persons were arrested yesterday on charges they had given false information or sent bogus messages in connection with the case.

Charles K. Rasmussen, car theft suspect, was charged in Minneapolis with making false statements to the FBI about possible disposition of the ransom money.

The complaint charged he lied when he told agents in St. Paul he had been asked by Hall to make a telephone contact when he got out of jail.

Says Japan Persecutes Its Korean Residents

SEOUL (AP)—South Korean Foreign Minister Pyun Yung Tai today charged that Japan is persecuting its Korean residents.

He said Japan will be "held responsible for any evil consequences that will follow an overt encouragement to fan national ill-will against Korea."

She was granted a divorce on grounds of cruelty.

Networks Reject Red Request for Chance To Answer McCarthy

NEW YORK (AP)—Three major networks have turned down requests from the Communist party and its organ, the Daily Worker, for radio and television time to answer Sen. Joseph R. McCarthy (R-Wis.).

CBS, ABC and NBC announced their decisions last night. The Communists had asked for free time after McCarthy a week ago tonight made references to general during a TV-radio talk carried by major networks and some stations.

NBC, in announcing its action, said the requests from the Communist party and the Worker were turned down because "the public interest would not be served by granting time for this purpose."

SPRINGFIELD, Mass. (AP)—Dr. Philip B. Gove, general editor of the Merriam-Webster dictionary, says the word "McCarthyism" will not get into the dictionary "for a few years, perhaps even a decade."

Noted Doctor Fatally Shot As Other Man

DETROIT (AP)—Dr. Edward D. Spalding, 60, a noted heart specialist, left his office in Detroit's Professional Building and stepped into the busy street.

A few minutes later he lay dead on the pavement, police said, shot by a former mental patient who got the wrong man.

Barely half an hour later, two rookie patrolmen grabbed John Sherback, 31, a few blocks away. In Sherback's pocket was a list of persons he had condemned to death, they said. Spalding's name was not included.

Police said the list included "all the orderlies and one nurse in a building at Eloise," a mental hospital. Sherback looked dazed when he was told the man he had killed was Spalding.

He said that he had meant to kill Dr. William T. McAlonan, who he claimed had mistreated him. McAlonan was still in his office at the Professional Building at the time of the shooting.

McAlonan said that the last time he had treated Sherback was in 1943. He said that he had received a letter from Dr. Henry Luce asking about Sherback because he had been admitted to Eloise as a mental patient.

Dr. Luce was head of the consultation department at the hospital. Sherback had mentioned the names of several doctors and others in the City Health Department that he intended to kill.

He said he was mad at all doctors because they "refused to give me a clean bill of health so I could get married eight years ago."

DEER LAKE, Pa. (AP)—For 27 years Mrs. Mary Vacula had gone deer hunting on the opening day of Pennsylvania's season.

For 27 years, she had never shot a deer.

Yesterday, she stayed home while her husband Steve went out on opening day with five male friends.

While he was deep in the forest, she spotted a five-point buck from her back porch.

Mrs. Vacula got her deer. Steve got none.

Fulbright Says Demos Can Use Constructive Attitude With GOP

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. Fulbright (D-Ark) said today he thinks the Democrats can adopt a constructive approach to President Eisenhower's legislative proposals but that "doesn't mean the Democrats are going to agree to everything the Republican administration proposes."

He commented, in an interview, on Adlai E. Stevenson's remark yesterday that he thinks the Democrats ought to disregard the "provocation" he said had been given them by "attacks on the Democratic party" and view Eisenhower's legislative proposals strictly on their merits.

Sen. Symington (D-Mo) said he thinks the public is "much more interested in the price of farm products, the high cost of living and what is going to be done about modernizing this country's defenses than in the Harry Dexter White Case."

Stevenson, the 1952 Democratic presidential nominee, made it clear at a news conference yesterday that in speaking of "attacks on the Democratic party" he was alluding to the charges leveled by Atty. Gen. Brownell against former President Truman in the White case. Stevenson has defended Truman's record as a vigorously anti-Communist one.

Will Oppose Conscription Of U. S. Labor

WASHINGTON (AP)—Union and management officials have agreed to oppose any form of conscription of labor in wartime but government agencies are reported still toying with the idea.

Details of the agreement of organized labor and management men were outlined today by AFL President George Meany in the AFL's monthly magazine, and were confirmed by a governmental source familiar with the situation.

Meany said representatives of the National Assn. of Manufacturers and U. S. Chamber of Commerce have agreed with the AFL, CIO and railroad labor organizations that, in case of all-out war, the government should not have authority to order workers to take particular jobs.

It was reported that Defense Department and selective service officials are not sure, however, that manpower requirements in certain industries can be satisfied in the event of war without some such power.

The matter is being thrashed out quietly. The labor-management committee's report, marked "restricted" and advising against any form of wartime labor conscription, has been filed with Defense Mobilization Director Arthur S. Flemming.

Defense Department and selective service views are being aired before a separate group made up of representatives of interested

Buffalo Round-up Is Nearly Finished In St. Louis County

ST. LOUIS (AP)—They've rounded up 11 of the 17 buffalo roaming 2,600 wooded acres in St. Louis County.

The buffalo were found in a corral baited with hay, salt and water in Tyson Valley Park. The county was forced to get rid of the animals after the government decided to use the area for an ammunition testing ground.

There are still 6 buffalo, 35 deer and 37 elk at large. Five elk wandered into the corral earlier but were chased out in favor of the buffalo.

Harold D. Wheaton, operator of the Hill City zoo, Rapid City, S. D., notified County Supervisor Luman F. Matthews he will arrive tomorrow to pick up the buffalo.

government agencies. Fleming is expected ultimately to reconcile any conflicts. The interagency group has not yet reported to Flemming, however.

AFL President Meany, in reporting the labor-management agreement in the AFL's American Federationist, says:

"On this issue, committee members had before them the clear evidence developed during World War II. In the conflict with the totalitarian states, it was clearly shown that free labor can easily outproduce compulsory labor.

"The individual working on a job he has freely chosen is a far more productive worker than the individual who is forced to accept a particular job under government direction."

Meany said the labor-management group felt, however, that neither the worker nor the employer, in all-out war, could be left "to do exactly as he wishes."

Father's Talk Makes Awards Seem Pale

BOSTON (AP)—A courageous message from a grief-stricken father made the polls and awards fade into insignificance yesterday at the weekly meeting of Boston Football Writers and Broadcasters.

The father was Thomas Pappas of Worcester, whose son John, a brilliant 20-year-old Boston University scholar-athlete, died of a gridiron injury this season.

The occasion was the presentation to the elder Pappas of the George C. Carens Award because of the courage and in which Pappas and his wife carried on after their son's death.

Despite their sorrow, they urged that Boston University and their son's teammates continue football.

His voice breaking with emotion, the elder Pappas told the writers, "I want to say a few things about my son, Johnny."

"I was an athlete for 25 years, a wrestler," he said. "When Johnny wanted to play football, I didn't stop him, I told him to keep on going. You're doing good work, Johnny," I said.

"Many times Johnny would come home with his head down. Then I'd kick him. You have to be a sport win or lose. I would tell him and he would cheer up. x x x

"I don't care to talk much about my boy Johnny, but I just want to leave a thought with the captains of college team captains were present here: Play as hard as you can. But play a clean game, win or lose. It's only a sport," he said, adding:

"Johnny never said a word about himself. Not until his death did we find out that he was one of the best liked fellows in the school. I remember before the game when he left to play. His mother said: 'Watch yourself, Johnny, remember this is your last year so don't get hurt.'"

"Then Johnny said to his mother 'Yes, this is my last year. It's good to die.'"

"Death was the last word she ever heard from him."

Notre Dame Tops Midwest All Star Team

CHICAGO (AP)—Glittering with one of the strongest backfields ever produced by the area, the 1953 All-Western football team selected today by the Associated Press was led by Notre Dame with three honored players.

Eight schools contributed to the mythical team which had for its backfield Paul Giel of Minnesota, Johnny Latner of Notre Dame, J. C. Caroline, of Illinois and Alan (The Horse) Ameche of Wisconsin.

Co-Champions Illinois and Michigan State of the Big Ten and Oklahoma, Big Seven titlist, each placed only one man.

Iowa which held Notre Dame to a 14-14 tie in perhaps the season's most dramatic game surprisingly placed two stars from its brilliant line—center Jerry Hilgenberg and guard Calvin Jones, who with Carloline won a coveted All-Western honor as a sophomore.

The honor team, selected by the Associated Press after consultation with coaches, scouts and sports writers, also included Don Dohoney of Michigan State College at end, Don Penza and Art Hunter of Notre Dame at end and tackle respectively, J. D. Roberts of Oklahoma at guard and George Jacoby of Ohio State at tackle.

The honor quarterback post goes to Giel, who although a tail-back, called signals for Minnesota's Gophers. Giel, winning All-Western stardom for the third straight year, closed his career as the only college player in history to handle the ball more than 1,000 times over three seasons. The Gopher great handled the ball 1,056 times and set three Big Ten records this year.

Guard J. D. Roberts of Oklahoma's Big Seven champions was a blocking marvel and his defensive work was near perfect.

The second All-Western team also left little to be desired at any position. It has in its backfield Ralph Gugliemi of Notre Dame at quarterback, Le Roy Bolden of Michigan State and Larry Grigg of Oklahoma at halfbacks, and Neil Worden of Notre Dame at fullback.

A third team was selected, including a backfield of Vervil Switzer of Kansas State, Ron Drzewiecki of Marquette, Bobby Watkins of Ohio State and Bob Bauman of Missouri.

Among those receiving honorable mention were:

Ends Toni Miner of Tulsa and Ed Pence of Kansas State; tackle Joe Lundy of Kansas; center Ken Gowdy of Kansas State; backs John Bordogna of Nebraska, Bill Bredder of Oklahoma A&M, Ed Merrifield of Missouri, Max Burkett of Iowa State, Gene Calame of Oklahoma, Earl Lunsford of Oklahoma A&M.

Pilot Grove High Crowns Alumni Basketball Queen

PILOT GROVE—Mrs. Norman Johnson was crowned queen at the Pilot Grove High School's annual alumni homecoming basketball games Saturday night in the high school gymnasium.

Mr. Johnson was her escort. Mrs. Harlan Brownfield, escorted by Mr. Brownfield, was the queen's attendant. T. J. Mellor, president of the student council, acted as master of ceremonies and crowned the queen. He then presented Mrs. Johnson and Mrs. Brownfield with gifts.

Door awards were presented to: Mrs. Robert Rental, Miss Helen Walker, Mrs. William Kramel and Mrs. Earl Kammerich. John Atkinson, Billingsville, was presented a gift as the oldest basketball player present and Mrs. Charles Hoff one for the oldest girl basketball player present.

One of the highlights of the evening was the presentation of the all-star prize to Mrs. Raymond Rohlfing, Fayette, and LeRoy Ries, Pilot Grove, as the most valuable players in the games.

Playing on the Alumni girls' teams were: Mrs. Paul Schlotzhauer, New Franklin, Miss Dorene Knedgen, Miss Bernice Schupp, Booneville, Miss Lucille Krumm, Booneville, Mrs. Raymond Wesseling, Fayette, Miss Rose Mary Wesseling, Kansas City, Supt. Davis acted as coach of the team.

The bowls which go after big conference talent completed their lineup yesterday. The Gator Bowl at Jacksonville, Fla., came up with Auburn of the Southeastern Conference against Texas Tech of the Border Conference.

The Sun Bowl at El Paso, mecca of the slightly smaller schools on New Year's day, picked Mississippi Southern to meet Texas Western.

Only two "receptive" schools out of the top 20 teams in the final Associated Press poll of the country's best were left without Jan. 1 engagements, Texas, No. 11 and co-champion of the Southwest Conference, was theoretically eligible as was Kentucky, No. 16, from the Southeastern Conference.

All the rest, from top-ranking Maryland through Michigan, No. 20, were signed, barred by conference rules, or, as in the case of runner-up Notre Dame uninterested.

On seasonal rankings the Orange Bowl, which suffered with Alabama's 61-7 shellacking of Syracuse a year ago, has come up with just about the top attraction in Maryland against fourth-ranking Oklahoma. This pairing came about through a new agreement matching the champions of the Big Seven and Atlantic Coast Conferences.

The Rose Bowl, tied up with the Pacific Coast Conference and the Big Ten, will offer third-ranking Michigan State against UCLA, No. 5. The Sugar Bowl at New Orleans, free of any conference strings, chose West Virginia, No. 10, and Georgia Tech, No. 8, and the Cotton Bowl at Dallas, where the Southwest Conference champ plays host, will have Rice, No. 6, entertaining Alabama, No. 13.

On the first time since the 1924 games, over-all supervision will rest in the hands of someone other than Avery Brundage.

The new boss of the U.S. Olympic Assn. is Kenneth L. (Tug) Wilson, best known to American sports fans as commissioner of the Big Ten. He had been vice president of the Olympic association, and was elevated to the top job upon the retirement of Brundage. He will keep his Big Ten post.

Brundage decided to give up his recent selection as president of the International Olympic Committee. He figured it might lead to charges of bias if he held both jobs at the same time.

The 300 delegates to the quadrennial meeting of the association yesterday selected the committees which will direct activities in the various events of the 1956 Olympics at Melbourne, Australia and the 1958 Pan American Games at Mexico City.

Committee chairmen were to be chosen today. Coaches of the various squads will be named later and announced by Asa Bushnell, who was re-elected secretary of the U. S. association.

Also elected yesterday were: Douglas F. Roby of Detroit, retiring president of the Amateur Athletic Union, to be vice president, and R. Max Ritter of Philadelphia to be treasurer, succeeding Owen Van Camp of Chicago, who has retired.

Brundage called for a rebirth of American participation in amateur athletics, saying, "We are certainly the greatest nation for sports, but that isn't sport at all. That is entertainment."

WASHINGTON (AP)—American Olympic officials today start choosing the men to be entrusted with seeing to it that the United States retains its unofficial world championship in the 1956 Olympics.

Pilot Grove High Crowns Alumni Basketball Queen

PILOT GROVE—Mrs. Norman Johnson was crowned queen at the Pilot Grove High School's annual alumni homecoming basketball games Saturday night in the high school gymnasium.

Mr. Johnson was her escort. Mrs. Harlan Brownfield, escorted by Mr. Brownfield, was the queen's attendant. T. J. Mellor, president of the student council, acted as master of ceremonies and crowned the queen. He then presented Mrs. Johnson and Mrs. Brownfield with gifts.

Door awards were presented to: Mrs. Robert Rental, Miss Helen Walker, Mrs. William Kramel and Mrs. Earl Kammerich. John Atkinson, Billingsville, was presented a gift as the oldest basketball player present and Mrs. Charles Hoff one for the oldest girl basketball player present.

W. L. Shepherd, Booneville, received a gift for the oldest class represented, that of 1921. Pvt. Robert Betteridge, Ft. Riley, won the prize for coming the greatest distance.

One of the highlights of the evening was the presentation of the all-star prize to Mrs. Raymond Rohlfing, Fayette, and LeRoy Ries, Pilot Grove, as the most valuable players in the games.

Playing on the Alumni girls' teams were: Mrs. Paul Schlotzhauer, New Franklin, Miss Dorene Knedgen, Miss Bernice Schupp, Booneville, Miss Lucille Krumm, Booneville, Mrs. Raymond Wesseling, Fayette, Miss Rose Mary Wesseling, Kansas City, Supt. Davis acted as coach of the team.

On the regular high school team were: Carolyn Cole, Bonnie Knedgen, Elaine Seibach, Dorothy Roth, Margie Schupp, Mary Luttrell, Norma Lee Lang, Wanda Bergman, Miss Lida Harris is the girls' basketball coach.

The high school team defeated the girls' alumni team by a score of 33-22.

The F. F. A. alumni and the regular alumni boys game followed. Those playing on the F. F. A. team were Ralph Rapp, Martin Wesseling, Wayne Spence, Glen Schlotzhauer, Bobby Asbury, and Clem Twenter. Bryon Beckner coached the team.

LeRoy Ries, Marvin Lewis, James Hoff, William Woodridge, Aubrey Schlotzhauer, Robert Betteridge played on the alumni team. The F. F. A. Team won 32-27.

The bowls which go after big conference talent completed their lineup yesterday. The Gator Bowl at Jacksonville, Fla., came up with Auburn of the Southeastern Conference against Texas Tech of the Border Conference.

The Sun Bowl at El Paso, mecca of the slightly smaller schools on New Year's day, picked Mississippi Southern to meet Texas Western.

Only two "receptive" schools out of the top 20 teams in the final Associated Press poll of the country's best were left without Jan. 1 engagements, Texas, No. 11 and co-champion of the Southwest Conference, was theoretically eligible as was Kentucky, No. 16, from the Southeastern Conference.

All the rest, from top-ranking Maryland through Michigan, No. 20, were signed, barred by conference rules, or, as in the case of runner-up Notre Dame uninterested.

On seasonal rankings the Orange Bowl, which suffered with Alabama's 61-7 shellacking of Syracuse a year ago, has come up with just about the top attraction in Maryland against fourth-ranking Oklahoma. This pairing came about through a new agreement matching the champions of the Big Seven and Atlantic Coast Conferences.

The Rose Bowl, tied up with the Pacific Coast Conference and the Big Ten, will offer third-ranking Michigan State against UCLA, No. 5. The Sugar Bowl at New Orleans, free of any conference strings, chose West Virginia, No. 10, and Georgia Tech, No. 8, and the Cotton Bowl at Dallas, where the Southwest Conference champ plays host, will have Rice, No. 6, entertaining Alabama, No. 13.

On the first time since the 1924 games, over-all supervision will rest in the hands of someone other than Avery Brundage.

The new boss of the U.S. Olympic Assn. is Kenneth L. (Tug) Wilson, best known to American sports fans as commissioner of the Big Ten. He had been vice president of the Olympic association, and was elevated to the top job upon the retirement of Brundage. He will keep his Big Ten post.

Brundage decided to give up his recent selection as president of the International Olympic Committee. He figured it might lead to charges of bias if he held both jobs at the same time.

The 300 delegates to the quadrennial meeting of the association yesterday selected the committees which will direct activities in the various events of the 1956 Olympics at Melbourne, Australia and the 1958 Pan American Games at Mexico City.

Committee chairmen were to be chosen today. Coaches of the various squads will be named later and announced by Asa Bushnell, who was re-elected secretary of the U. S. association.

Also elected yesterday were: Douglas F. Roby of Detroit, retiring president of the Amateur Athletic Union, to be vice president, and R. Max Ritter of Philadelphia to be treasurer, succeeding Owen Van Camp of Chicago, who has retired.

Brundage called for a rebirth of American participation in amateur athletics, saying, "We are certainly the greatest nation for sports, but that isn't sport at all. That is entertainment."

Minor Draft Opens Way For Trading

ATLANTA, Ga.—The major league draft, which netted 13 cutrate bargains from the minors for $132,500, may have opened the door for future trades and the big league teams may now feel disposed to toss established players into the trade market.

Baltimore, for instance, drafted Vinicio Garcia, a highly touted second baseman from Shreveport, and veteran centerfielder Chuck Diering, a proven ball hawk, from San Francisco. That would seem to open up the possibility of a deal involving second baseman Bobby Young or centerfielder Johnny Groth. The Orioles are sadly in need of a first and third baseman as well as pitchers.

Garcia batted .305 last season. He was No. 1 pick in the draft. Diering, former St. Louis Cardinal and New York Giant outfielder, never hit in the majors but is a fine defensive outfielder. He hit .322 with Minneapolis. Detroit endeavored to plug an infield weakness by drafting first baseman Charlie Kress (.317 at Rochester) and second baseman Harry Bright (.285 at Memphis).

The White Sox, in dire need of left-handers to supplement Billy Pierce, grabbed two southpaw pitchers, Al Sima from Chattanooga and Jocko Thompson from Baltimore of the International League. Both have seen big league service. Cleveland bolstered its pitching staff by selecting right-hander Dom Fracchia, voted the outstanding in the Texas League. Fracchia had a 15-12 record with last place Beaumont. The Indians also grabbed an Eastern League stand-out shortstop Tom Korczowski, who batted .285 and fielded brilliantly at Wilkes Barre. Korczowski, a Giant farmhand, was taken off the Minneapolis list.

Two of the Brooklyn Dodgers, choice farm prospects were lost in the draft. The Philadelphia Athletics took second baseman Forrest Jacobs, who hit .282 at Fort Worth. The other Dodger chattel to advance was pitcher Jim Melton (10-10 at Mobile), picked by Cincinnati. Jacobs was on Montreal's list and Melton on St. Paul.

Perhaps two of the prize plums are outfielder Gerry Lynch and pitcher Royce Lint drafted by Pirates and the St. Louis Cardinals respectively. Lynch, a 25-year-old Yankee farmhand, tore up the class B Piedmont League with a league-leading .333 batting mark before he was advanced to Kansas City.

The Chicago Cubs with a bad centerfield problem all last season, chose Luis Marquez, former Brave outfielder. Marquez, batted .292 and stole 37 bases with pennant winning Toledo of the American Association. Seven of the 16 clubs desisted from the draft including the world champion New York Yankees and National League pennant winning Brooklyn Dodgers.

The minors go about their own draft too. Two clubs signed new coaches. The White Sox signed Marty Marion, former manager of both St. Louis clubs and the Athletics named Augie Galan. Marion replaces Roger Cramer. Galan managed Oakland last season. The Giants, making room for a much-needed starting pitcher, shunted Monte Kennedy to Minneapolis.

Sports Roundup— Mulloy Slaps Most Everything To Do With Davis Cup Team

NEW YORK (AP)—If our Davis Cup tennis forces think they are having it hard in Australia, what with defeats and injuries plaguing their early efforts, they should just hear what one of their old pals and playmates is saying about them over here.

In other words, that man Gardner Mulloy has worked up a temper again and what he doesn't like about our cup setup is practically everything. As editor of the latest publication devoted to the amateur sport, Tennis World, the angry man from Florida is in position to get a big load off his chest.

The veteran star, who was this country's No. 1 ranking player only two years ago, applauds the choice of Billy Talbert as team captain and concedes that Tony Trabert and Vic Seixas deserved to make the trip. But from there on, it's time to start ducking. Let us give Mulloy room to swing.

"If youth is to be selected to do a man's job," he says, "warming up slowly," then the selection of Ham Richardson was a good choice even though he is out-ranked by five other outstanding players including a former national champ and several former Davis Cup players.

"Frankly, most of us have never known just what procedure the selection committee uses in making its selections or appointments in the past or present. Perhaps this may be clarified by some impartial selection committee in the future."

"The selection of Bob Perry comes as a real surprise to many players and to students of the game as well, even though Bob is a very fine boy. Certainly he was not selected on his record alone, which shows losses to both players of higher and lesser rank. But perhaps being a nice boy and having residence in southern California has now become an influencing qualification for Davis Cup team membership."

"Perhaps this sounds just a little professional, but what happens if either Tony or Vic is injured or becomes ill?"

We already have the answer to that one. Seixas' game knee has begun acting up again, and we're good and sunk if it doesn't recover. Might not even get past the Belgium team in the inter-zone final at Brisbane. An experienced replacement for him wouldn't look bad, at that.

Mulloy next looks into the appointment of Dr. Ellsworth Davenport, treasurer of the USLTA, as that body's official representative with the team, and wonders if the trip was necessary.

"Where does Talbert's authority end and just where and when does Davenport's duty to team and country begin?" he wants to know. "Likewise, is this not a duplication of effort and is this not creating a situation which is loaded with dynamite?"

Finally Mulloy, the old watchdog of the tennis treasury, views with pain the manner in which our selectors are tossing his money around.

"The decision to include the wives of our married players as well as the wife of the official representative of the USLTA will certainly have widespread repercussions," he prophesies. "If this establishes a precedent, then future committees will probably be forced to select only unmarried players in order to keep down the cost."

Maryland, Oklahoma Coaches Both Want Underdog Rating

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—Neither Coach Jim Tatum of Maryland nor Coach Bud Wilkinson of Oklahoma wants the favorite's role when their teams meet in the Orange Bowl New Year's Day.

Both coaches, who arrived here yesterday to make preliminary arrangements for bringing their football squads to Miami later this month, insisted their team should be the underdog.

"We'll have to sharpen our passing attack because we'll never be able to run against the Terps," Wilkinson said.

"I don't think we played any team as good as Oklahoma," said Tatum an hour later. "Oklahoma has changed its personnel and is much improved since its only loss of the season to Notre Dame."

Tatum saw Oklahoma wallop Oklahoma A&M Saturday and he told interviewers:

"The Sooners have blinding speed. They won't have any trouble running against us."

Wilkinson appeared disturbed when informed that a midwest source have established his team as a three-point favorite.

"We should be the underdogs," he countered.

Molesworth Said He Heard Discharge Rumor But Office Denies It

BALTIMORE (AP)—Keith Molesworth, head coach of the Baltimore Colts pro football team, said last night that "no one knows whether he is coming or going" on the coaching staff and "I had heard rumors about (my) being fired."

However, the Colts' front office, toned down any talk of discontent, and Don Kellett, president and general manager, said he was "completely surprised" at the report.

At the same time, the Baltimore Sun reported it had learned authoritatively that Molesworth was slated to take over the football helm at the University of Virginia.

Molesworth said he had been approached by a representative from Virginia and also had received several other offers but declined to say what they were.

At Charlottesville, Va., Gus K. Tebell, athletic director at Virginia, stated that Ned L. McDonald would remain head coach there.

US Tennis Hopes Hit New Low As Trabert Loses to Aussie

MELBOURNE, Australia (AP)—America's hopes for regaining the Davis Cup, fairly high upon the arrival of the U. S. team several weeks ago, hit a new low today with the stunning defeat of U. S. champion Tony Trabert by Rex Hartwig, an Australian second-stringer.

Hartwig, playing at the peak of his game, eliminated Trabert in the quarter-finals of the Victorian Tennis Championships 6-4, 4-6, 6-3, 6-2. It was the greatest victory of his career for Hartwig, who caused a furore here when he was left off last year's Davis Cup team. This year he is a member.

But he's not in the class of Ken Rosewall and Lewis Hoad, the Aussie stars, and that's what's worrying the American team.

Cecil Dump Tells Rotarians About His Trip to Bermuda

Cecil Dump, who visited Bermuda in November, told Rotary Club members of his trip, all made by air, as he spoke at the luncheon meeting Monday noon at Hotel Bothwell. He was introduced by Charles Alden, program chairman.

A member of the Rotary Club, Dump made the trip to the British islands off the American coast as one of the 16 trip winners in a national contest among Firestone store managers. His wife accompanied him for the week-long stay.

After flying from Kansas City to New York, the Dumps spent two days sightseeing in the big city and then flew to Bermuda, where they visited most of the places of interest, enjoyed the extreme beauty of the countryside and took a boat trip around the island and to other islands in the group.

President George H. Routsong presided and the invocation was by the Rev. Warren Neal. George T. Lockett led the singing with Miss Lillian Fox at the piano.

Visitors introduced by Guy Peabody were: the Rev. David M. Funk, guest of Lee Eickhoff; Bill Townsend, Clinton; Troy M. Haggard, Beverly, Calif., and Larry Griffith, Port Allegany, Pa.

Rotary Rotarians the past week were Charles Hofheins, Lexington; Dick Snow at Harrisonville and George H. Routsong in Kansas City.

Leo Eickhoff, chairman of the social committee, announced the Christmas party which will be held Monday evening, Dec. 14, at the St. Patrick's school.

Desi Finally Pulls Surprise on Lucy With Wedding Party

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—After 13 years of married life, Desi Arnaz finally surprised Lucille Ball.

Television's top-rated couple celebrated their 13th wedding anniversary last night at the Mocambo, Sunset Strip night spot. Lucy had expected a quiet dinner with Desi and two friends—director Vincente Minnelli and his guest Georgette Mortel, sister of Miss Universe.

When Desi and Lucy arrived at the Mocambo, he took his wife to a back room.

"We can't go in there," said Lucy. "Someone's having a party."

She was right. She was the surprised guest of honor. More than 40 guests sang "Happy Anniversary" to her as she entered.

Visibly stunned, she answered: "This is the first time in my life I've ever really been surprised." Then, kissing her husband, she added, "Honey, I just love the way you did this."

Charlie Morrison, owner of the Mocambo, baked a special anniversary cake for the couple and also provided a television set so the guests could watch "I Love Lucy."

Brazen Thieves Take Safe from Sheriff's Office at Hillsboro

HILLSBORO (U) — Some brazen thieves walked into the Jefferson County Courthouse yesterday, pried open the door to the sheriff's office and stole a 250-pound safe containing evidence in several criminal cases.

Deputy Sheriff George Helenschmidt, who speculated that the safe was taken to destroy the evidence, said no leads had been found in the theft. He said they had several suspects in mind.

Helenschmidt said the safe, which was kept in the office to store evidence and prisoner's personal possessions, also contained a sub-machine gun and $100 in cash recovered from a burglar.

The evidence, he said, consisted of stolen goods recovered from bur-

Indian War Hero to Help Tribesmen

ALBUQUERQUE, N. M. (AP)—A warrior son of warriors, who spent years fighting Japanese and the Communist hordes of North Korea and China, now is preparing for the toughest battle of his life—at home.

Hampton Haozous, 26-year-old Chiricahua Apache from the San Carlos reservation in Arizona, is studying government at the University of New Mexico.

"There is a misunderstanding of the past of my people," he said. "There must not be one of our future."

Eight years in the Marines, from the time he was 16, carried young Haozous from the San Carlos to Saipan, Okinawa, the Inchon landing in Korea and countless mountain battles. In 1951, no longer a youth, he emerged from the Marines, set and determined, saying:

"I want to help my people." Yesterday he said his father, now dead, was the organizer of a parliamentary form of government on the reservation. He was one of the first to lead his people towards adjustment in a white man's world.

His grandfather, still living at Ft. Sill, Okla., fought with Geronimo when the terrorist leader sought to drive the white man from the land of the Apaches. His grandfather was also among the wailing women and stoical men on the train taking the last of Geronimo's warriors to Florida as displaced persons—never again to haunt the nights of Western settlers.

He later was moved to Ft. Sill. Haozous had run away from several schools by the time he was 16. That year—1943—he persuaded his mother to let him join the Marines. When he left the Marines his mind was made up.

"I wanted to find the best way to help my people," he said. "So I turned to government."

"Already there are plans to withdraw the Indian Bureau. There will be a lot happening then and I must be ready. My people aren't prepared and the effect upon them will be bad."

"Although they will learn the white man's ways eventually," he said, "it will take time and the only way to do it is through education." Someday Haozous will return to the land of his father. His people will look for the same strength that was in his father and grandfather.

"I'll have my strength," he said, "but I hope it will be of character. My muscles will be useless in what I must do."

US Files $46,526 Tax Claim Against Estate Of Former Collector

ST. LOUIS (AP)—The government yesterday filed an income tax claim for $46,526 against the estate of Frank A. Britton, former St. Louis license collector.

Britton died in 1932, a month after he was indicted by a federal grand jury on charges of failing to file income tax returns for 1943-49.

The claim was filed during the opening session of U. S. tax court hearings in contested tax cases.

A stipulation claiming $9,691 in additional income taxes and penalties was filed against the John Ellis Chevrolet Co., Inc., of Paris, Mo. The sum was set by agreement of the company and the government following an earlier claim for $24,797 for the years 1948-49.

A consent agreement claiming $1,628 was filed against the estate of John Wheelodon of Moberly. A claim had been filed for $13,496 in income taxes and penalties for the years 1943, 1945, 1947, 1949 and 1950.

Polygamy Cult Leaders Will Be Sentenced Monday for Conspiracy

KINGMAN, Ariz. (AP)—The 27 purported leaders of the Short Creek multiple marriage cult will be sentenced Monday for conspiracy.

They pleaded guilty yesterday—just four months after a police force set up martial law in Short Creek, on the Arizona-Utah border, and rounded up the tiny community's men, women and children.

Charges of conspiracy were dropped against 69 other defendants, all but seven of whom are women.

Rep. Sullivan Takes Combined Vacation, Canal Inspection

WASHINGTON (AP)—Rep. Sullivan (D-Mo.) left today by ship on a combined vacation and investigation trip to the Panama Canal Zone.

She said she plans to investigate wages paid Panamanians and Americans for the same jobs on government projects, and to inspect schools.

Mrs. Sullivan is a member of the House Merchant Marine and fisheries committee but she said she is not being sent by the committee.

The Mennonites got their name from Menno Simons, who was the first leader of the sect in Holland.

Average Newspaper Reader Knows Little About World Events

ZURICH, Switzerland (AP)—A poll of American newspaper readers shows that 40 per cent of them are unable to identify Georgi Malenkov as Soviet Russia's Premier, the International Press Institute disclosed last night.

The average American, said IPI reads "very little" of the 4 1/2 columns of foreign news printed daily by the average American newspaper. "The level of his knowledge about important events abroad is low," the institute commented.

The summary was contained in a 266-page book called "The Flow of News," published by the IPI. An organization of editors in 32 countries, its study was financed by the Ford and Rockefeller foundations.

The reader poll was conducted for IPI last April and May by the American Institute for Public Opinion. Malenkov succeeded Joseph Stalin as Russian Premier March 6.

The survey found 79 per cent of the Americans interviewed didn't know NATO means the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

Authorities Seek Man Who Took Children From Legal Custody

CAPE GIRARDEAU (AP)—A California man, charged with taking his two children from the legal custody of his former wife, is being sought by state and county authorities here.

William B. Jacobson of Colton, Calif., was charged in a warrant filed yesterday with "enticing children from lawful custody."

Jacobson and his two daughters, Ann Marie and Kathryn Ellen 5, disappeared yesterday. His former wife, Mrs. Billie Jacobson of Cape Girardeau, said he took the two girls to lunch with her permission but did not return.

Workman Uncovers Old Treasure In Digging Garage Foundation

SEALY, Tex. (AP)—A workman digging a foundation for Frank Koy's new garage punched his post-hole digger down into a half-gallon glass jar containing $322 in gold and silver coins dated from 1844 to 1902. Koy gave some of the money to workmen around the job and said he hoped the rest would pay for the new garage.

Ex-Gov. Sigler, Michigan, Dies In Plane Crash

BATTLE CREEK, Mich. (AP)—Kim Sigler, who rocketed to the Michigan governor's chair seven years ago after a sensational grand jury expose, plummeted to his death late yesterday in a fiery plane crash. Three companions died with him.

Sigler's own four-place plane, threading its way through a dense fog, snagged onto a guy wire supporting a 540-foot television tower. The impact sheared off one wing and sent the fuselage hurtling into a woods three quarters of a mile away where it crashed and burned.

The 59-year-old Republican ex-governor presumably was at the controls.

The other victims were Sigler's secretary, Mrs. Ruth Prentice, 41; her sister, Mrs. Virginia Schuyler, 28; and Mrs. Schuyler's husband Harold, 37, of Lansing.

The crash scene was near Augusta, in northeast Kalamazoo County. Sigler and his party were returning from a combination business-pleasure trip to Louisiana.

It was believed that because of the fog Sigler might have been coming in for a landing at Kellogg Field, only three miles from the tower.

In the mid-1940s Sigler, as special prosecutor for a one-man state graft grand jury, was responsible for indictments against more than 100 legislators and lobbyists. Many of them went to prison. Bribe-taking to influence votes was exposed.

After a bitter feud over continuance of the grand jury, Sigler took a fling at politics in 1946. By a thumping majority of 340,000 votes, he defeated Democratic incumbent Murray D. Van Wageningen.

But after one two-year term, Sigler, was unseated by present Democratic Gov. G. Mennen Williams by 164,000 votes in a surprising political nosedive. He returned to his law practice in western Michigan.

New Quake Frightens Grecians, Topples 90 Homes, No One Hurt

ATHENS, Greece (AP)—A new earthquake terrorized Greece last night, collapsing 90 houses and damaging 300 others in the southern central part of the country. Press accounts made no mention of casualties.

The quake also rocked the nation's west coast and was felt in the Ionian islands, where thousands were killed or left homeless last summer by the worst such disaster in modern Greek history.
